

October 2018

Dear Bradley,

Showing up...

Last month, you may recall that I hectored our ECOS community with a plea for more active alumni participation. I asked you to sign up for the Alumni Facebook page, sign up for Amazon Smile, make a financial contribution as appropriate, keep an eye out for great students who can benefit from the College and stay in touch. You know the pitch: just show up for the College when you can. Read more.

Daniel Helman, PhD '17

Daniel writes, "I got to speak at the International Space Development Conference in Los Angeles in May and gave a talk on strategies for making peace through trade, if humanity happens to encounter some advanced civilization from another world. The talk was covered in the online journal Motherboard in an article called 'Our DNA Might Be the Most Valuable Thing in a Trade Deal with Aliens.' From there I went to Shanghai, China, and organized a special session on the Mathematics of Planet Earth at the Joint International Meeting of the Chinese Mathematical Society and the American Mathematical Society. I gave a talk entitled Mathematics of the Geodynamo about hypothetical considerations related to our Earth's core. Next, I gave a talk at a

About Ecoss

Ecoss Newsletter was named in recognition of both new beginnings and symposium at Anhui University on an integrated model of earthquake prediction, and I am currently working on the procedure."

Daniel also visited Israel in August and presented at a conference put on by the International Network of Philosophers of Education. The theme of the talk was the crossover between mathematics and fundamentalism.

Daniel's recent publications include "Galactic Distribution of Chirality Sources of Organic Molecules" in Acta Astronautica, "When the Whales Left" in Plumwood Mountain; "Schizophrenia Remission without Medication" in the Asian Journal of Psychiatry, and "Constructivist Discipline in a Student-Centered Classroom" in Academic Exchange Quarterly.

Daniel continues to live and work at Ton Duc Thang University in Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam, currently in the faculty of labor relations and trade unions.

Jamie Schantz '73

Jamie writes, "I am enthusiastically pursuing my mission of peace of mind and service to others. I am working on simplifying life, so that when the opportunity arises, my spouse Dixie and I can take off at a moment's notice. Most days, you will find me helping young people, adults, and seniors feel better, move easier, and last longer...with all their original parts."

Martin Ziebell '07

After four years as station manager at the Prescott College Kino Bay Center, Martin Ziebell is moving on to pursue other interests and spend more time with family. All the best Martin!
